

CRIMT Doctoral School 2010

Dear Student,

Thank you for enrolling in the 2010 CRIMT Summer School. This year, we have decided to offer a rather more 'technical' program in the knowledge that the scientific dimension will be more than adequately addressed in the four plenary sessions, the four round-table discussions and the 260 workshop presentations which make up the 2010 CIRA-CRIMT conference program on representation at work. To remind you, the Doctoral School starts on Tuesday 15 June at 11:00 (Room 2320 in the Alphonse-Desjardins Building, Laval University) and will finish on Friday 18 June at 16:30, at the same time as the conference. If there are still any outstanding questions relating to the logistical aspects of your stay in Quebec, please contact Karine Drolet (karine.drolet.1@umontreal.ca).

PROGRAM

Session 1 : Tuesday 15 June 2010, 11:00 – 12:30 (Simultaneous interpretation available)

Introduction and presentation of participants

So we may learn more about where you are in your work, please prepare a 2 to 3 minute presentation (please make good use of the allotted time – without being too short – I will ask you to elaborate further – nor too long – or you run the risk that I will cut you) about the state of your research project (for those who will be starting their studies next fall, it will be a matter of taking a few minutes to make a presentation on what you are intending to work on), the proposed (or actual) methodology, your progress to date and, where appropriate, some preliminary results.

Facilitator: Nicolas Roby (Université de Montréal)

Lunch : The Pub, Laval University

Session 2 : Tuesday 15 June 2010, 14:00 – 15:30 (Simultaneous interpretation available)

Endnotes and Zotero : Superheroes of reference management software

Among the many obstacles that stand between a doctoral student and his/her thesis, navigating the sea of references in which he/she is drowning – or behind which he/she is hiding – is a major challenge. How do you classify, store and retrieve this growing mass of articles, pdf files and lecture notes? Do you make bibliographic references as you go along, or at the end?.....do you adopt the author-date style or follow the classic style? Fortunately, reference management software offers us simple, quick and extremely efficient solutions to help us manage our database of references, enabling us to integrate and easily modify our bibliographic records. In this workshop we will examine two software competitors – Zotero and Endnotes – and share some tips from the pros.

Facilitator : Pierre-Antoine Harvey (Université de Montréal)

Session 3 : Tuesday 15 June 2010, 15:45 – 17:15 (Simultaneous interpretation available)

What makes a good conference presentation?: Understanding the mechanics

More than two-thirds of students enrolled in the Doctoral School will make a presentation at the 2010 CIRA-CRIMT conference on representation at work. This is an ideal occasion therefore to explore, in terms of substance and form, what constitutes (or does not constitute) an acceptable academic standard and contributes (or does not contribute) to a successful presentation. After sharing some insights (see the small task below), we will follow this with an overview of the mechanics of making a presentation, focusing particularly on the visual, timing, balancing the content, interaction and the control of pace and anticipation.

Facilitator : Nicolas Roby (Université de Montréal)

So that everyone can actively participate in this session, we ask you to please think of two aspects (of form or content) that you believe contribute to the success of a conference presentation and then, to the contrary, two aspects that you believe hinder the success of a presentation.

Session 4 : Tuesday 15 June 2010, 17:15 – 17:30 (Simultaneous interpretation available)

Participants will be assigned some work to complete during (and following) the 2010 CIRA-CRIMT conference on representation at work. Participants in the Doctoral School will be given the task to summarize and to comment on the content of a plenary session (to be assigned) and a workshop of their choice. Summaries (and comments) should be sent to us before the end of July and will be placed on a website (a Blog) specifically designed for this purpose. The participants should add this publication to their CV, whilst we will take care of the dissemination and publicity.

Wednesday June 16th to 18th 2010

CIRA-CRIMT Conference on employee representation.
